The workshop:

The workshop is organised by Özyeğin University and University of Parma (in cooperation with “Sapienza” University of Rome and University of Naples “Federico II”), with the support of the DIDALABS System, Department of Architecture, University of Florence, with the cooperation of the Università degli Studi "Mediterranea" di Reggio Calabria, with the patrociny of the International study centre for the History of Cities “Storia della Città”, with the kind collaboration of Mimarlar Odasi Istanbul Büyükkent Subesi, and the precious contribution of nai010 uitgevers/publishers, Rotterdam. Students from University of Parma and from Ozyegin University coordinated by international tutors will be attending lectures on selected topics related with the workshop design assignments, taking part in the digital survey and designing different solutions for the Galata (Beyoglu) waterfront in Istanbul. Participation is free for selected architecture students, accommodation, transportation and food will not be provided by the organization. All the participants will receive a certificate of attendance. The students will present their projects on the last day of the workshop.

Design Methodology:

The workshop focuses on the architectural survey and redesign of the urban blocks of the Galata waterfront: we should not conceive these blocks as arbitrary objects, like in most contemporary architectural production, but rather as living organisms within the formation process of urban tissues. The single building designed by each student is therefore part of a larger scale organism and contributes with its physical consistence to the definition of a part of the city. The projects will therefore adhere to the principles of the construction of an environment suitable not only for private functions, but also for social activities. The workshop focuses on the theme of Galata-Beyoglu Waterfront considering its ongoing transformation. The area is indeed an important connection point between the sea and the historical Galata neighbourhood, acting as the city’s “urban facade” towards the sea. The workshop will include also an advanced experimentation in Sustainable Urban Design: the whole design process will implement the latest generation Environmental Design software and digital survey technologies and procedures

The survey/design methodology will include:

- Digital survey technologies and procedures
- Contextual Morphological Analysis
- Contextual Environmental Analysis
- Design of new Urban Tissues (mixed use)
- Re-design of public spaces

Aims:

The workshop considers critically the recent problems of the contemporary metropolis in Istanbul, the substitution of historical urban tissues with new buildings. In the past ten years, the frenetic building activity has obliterated historical urban tissues, replacing them with new functions and spatial layouts, inserting different building types within a consolidated historical urban tissue. This activity has caused in some cases the opposition of part of the local population. The city growth has always requested a processual substitution of building types with updated ones. This restructuring activity is not a modern one: we can enumerate similar examples in ancient and mediaeval times. The workshop will focus on the waterfront of Galata-Beyoglu as a case study about the transformation of the contemporary metropolis, within an ongoing scientific research on that district. The workshop considers the transformation of urban tissues both inevitable and necessary, but distinguishes two different operative modes: an evolution in continuity with the diachronic transformations of the context, or a substitution, in complete opposition. Students will design, after discussing with the teaching team, selected blocks within the medieval Genoese waterfront, and therein will conduct advanced analysis in the field of urban morphology, determining the adequate way to design a contemporary transformation. A student team will be accomplishing a survey of the area using the most advanced digital survey technologies and procedures.

Notes:

The organisation will provide cartographic data, maps, plans and reference to the literature on the topic, using a shared folder. All the materials given to the students should not be divulged or published in printed or in any digital form, pictures of the sites should not be published in internet or on social media for security reasons.
